What themes do Newnbam girls choose in the Debating Society as distinguished from the Political Club? The report and accounts for 1890 were approved and adopted.—The dividend was fixed at 1.30 per share, and a balance of f:22,523 was carried forward to this year's accounts. MM. Charles Babin, Alfred Musiver and Octave Noel were elected to the Administive Council in the place of MM. Alfred Andre, Edouard Deleasert, and Octave Venigne. A resolution was passed empowering the Council to contract a loan of £.20,000,000.

The board of directors of the Denisch-Agistische Bank at Shanghai, on May 25 held a meeting, at which the report and balance sheet for 1890 were put forward. The bank opened its office at Shanghai on Jan. 1, 1890, and has to report a regular development, although that development could only be a slow one, in consequence of the directors having to work on a totally new territory. It has been resolved to propose the distribution of a dividend of 24 per cent, on the paid up capital of Tin 1.250,000 (m. 5,60,,002) while Tls. 7,000 (m. 32 000) is to be brought to new acc unt. A DEBATE at the Union at Cambridge attracted considerably more interest than usual. The subject was the Suppression of the Opium Traffic: and the spects of the evening was made by Bir Thomas Wade, the Honorary Professor of Chinese, who sas able, from personal knowledge, to point out how grossly the effects of taking opiem have been exaggerated, and who also took the opportunity of elearing up some of the misconsoptions which seem to exist (not only in the undergraduate mind) as to the cause of what Mr Samuel Smith, M.P., humorously ceiled the points were Some interesting remarks on the other side were made by Archdeagon Motile, whose missionary life enabled him also to speak with authority. Finally, the Bouse divided at near midnight, and rejected the motion that is would view with approval the suppression of the Chinaman's contolation by a majority of ten in a house of over 200. By the way, there are some people who take even Union debates seriously George Horspool to be Acting Captain one of them (he is a Don and a Proctor) expresses his opinion in print that Sir. Thomas Wade's speech will retard the abolition of the opium traffic for years.

THERE is now a possibility of estimating with accuracy the growth of population which has taken place in the twenty-eight great centres in England and Wales of which vital statistics are periodically fornished by the Registrar-Ganeral. What is officially called the inner circle of London now contains 4,221,452 souls. Though the norease is less than might have been expected from the experience of the decade which ended in 1881, it is very great se compared with the returns of the census for that year, when the population in round numbers was 3,815,544 Inclusive of the outer circle, the metropolitan area now contains 5,616,000 people. The remarkable increase, however, shown in the latest feturn is that which has taken place at Cardiff, where in 1881 the number of inhabitants was But 82,790 inround numbers, but is now more than 130,000. Liverpool, on the other hand, has when the new census was taken. It was supposed to have $20,000 inhabitants, on the assum tion that the former intercensel increase had been proportionately maintained. We now find, however, that the population is only 517.116, lets, we believe, than it was ten years ago. Birkenhead, which is on the other side of the Mersey, has increased the number of its inhabitants from 84,000 to 99,000, but this pool have taken their residence at Birkenhead. It is possible, however, that good many people who used to spend their nights where they now only spend their the twenty-eight great towns is not so large as the estimates previously made would have led us to expect.

EVERY effort is being made in London by the Straits Settlements Association and others inferested in the Colony to create an interest in the question of the military contribution, and with a view to educating Members of Purliament on the subject, Mr W. H. Read, O.M.G., has had a special map prepared showing in a very effective manner the central position of Singapore with respect to British interests in the East. A glance at this map illustrates at once the importance of the colony as a shipping centre for the distribution of British commerce, and hence its value to Great Britain from a pational point of viol. By the circulation of this map, Mr Read will domuch to impress people at home with the Imperial interest which Singapore has, and it is to be hoped that when the subject i comes before Parliament the unfairness will be recognized of asking the inhabitants of the Straits Settlements, to undertake what is clearly the duty of the Home Government, viz., the effective defence of the colony, except that part of it which they are willing to provide for local purposes, and which they have never yet raised any objection to ; as Admiral Keppel says, even if the colony did not pay a cent towards the military contribution, 'our navy must lated to be more acceptable to the Chinese.

Warren wrote a long rigmarole, which failed entirely to convince the Governor of there being the smallest foundation for the charge. Being then politely invited to unreservedly withdraw his disrespectful and calumnious accusation, Sir O. Warren declined to do so, and the matter has therefore been referred to the Secretary of State. who by this time must be a little tired of Sir C. Warren and his hagressive peculiarities. Sir C. Warron his issued an order tantamount to prohibiting the efficers of the Singapore garrison from dancing. He orders white inckets to be worn at dances. In that very sultry climate the least exertion produces copious perpiration, and a white incket soon assumes so unpleasant an appearance in a ball-room that officers mostly refrain from dencing in that dress. In India red is worn, and is the dress prescribed by the dress regulations. But Sir C. Warren makes his own dress regulations, being at a safe distance from the Borse Guards, and prefers to arrange things so as to make them as uncomfortable as possible for every one.

(Continued.) In a former communication I promised to draw some lessons from the recent disturbances that are troubling the Empire of Students of ecclesisstical history know well enough that outbreaks such as have occurred in the North, and the slanderous atories that have been propagated by the Chinese against the Roman Catholics, are not new. But what occurred under the Roman Empire furnishes little instruction to act to-day. The conditions of the world are now so vastly different. Still one cannot help a feeling of surprise that the Roman Catholic Church, with its great history, and remarkable adaptability and elasticity has not discovered some means of carrying on their work in a number calcu-
